DEPARTMENT 1 · DEVELOPMENT AND IT · PROFESSION 2

Copywriter

Profession 2 of 10 in Development and IT.

What the profession means

A copywriter writes words that help people decide: ads, landing pages, emails and product pages.

What professionals do every day

Researches the customer, writes headlines and body copy, tests variations and edits to the brand voice.

Why businesses hire them, and what problems they solve

Clear copy raises the share of visitors who act. Weak copy wastes traffic.

- Pages that say nothing specific.
- Headlines that do not match the ad.
- Features listed without benefits.

Skills you need

- Customer research
- Headlines
- Structure
- Editing

Learning sequence: beginner, intermediate, advanced

Level	What you can do when you finish
Beginner	Rewrite a vague line into a specific one.
Intermediate	Write a full landing page.
Advanced	Write a launch email sequence.

Projects by level

- Beginner: Rewrite five product lines.

- Intermediate: Landing page for a small service.
- Advanced: Three-email launch sequence.

Client-ready portfolio project

A landing page for a fictional bookkeeping service: headline, three benefits, proof, an offer and a call to action.

Worked example

Worked example. 'High quality services at affordable prices' becomes 'Books closed by the 5th of every month. Fixed monthly price.' See Module C.

Assignment with full solution

ASSIGNMENT

Landing page draft

Business problem: A bookkeeping service needs a landing page.

Steps

1. Write the customer's problem in one sentence.
2. Write a headline and sub-line.
3. List three benefits with one proof point each.
4. Add one call to action.

Expected output: A one-screen page draft.

SOLUTION (ANSWER KEY)

The headline names the customer and the result. Each benefit has a proof point the client can show. One call to action avoids splitting attention.

Common mistakes

- Claims you cannot prove.
- Ignoring the target reader.
- Several calls to action.
- Copy written before the brief is clear.

Freelancing opportunities

- Landing pages and email sequences for small firms.
- Ad copy tests.
- Briefs for 'copywriter', 'sales copy', 'email copy'.
