BUSINESS AI STACK · CHAPTER 30

Digital marketing

A practical guide with steps, examples and a checklist. Read the chapter, then build the example.

CHAPTER 30 · DIGITAL MARKETING

Meta Business Suite, social media marketing and Google Ads (PPC)

Paid and organic channels work differently. This chapter explains how each one works, what it costs you in time or money, and how to set up a first campaign safely.

1. Meta Business Suite: one place for Facebook and Instagram

- Business portfolio. The top-level account that owns your pages, ad accounts and people. Give team members the least access they need.
- Pages and Instagram accounts. Your public presence. Connect the Instagram account to the business portfolio.
- Ad accounts and Meta Ads Manager. Where paid campaigns are built and paid for.
- Inbox. Messages from Facebook, Instagram and WhatsApp in one place.

2. Social media marketing: organic growth

Organic posts reach followers and, sometimes, more people when they are shared. Growth comes from consistency and useful content: short videos that answer one question, carousels that teach a method, and case studies with real numbers. Track reach, saves, shares and profile visits, not only likes.

Format	Good for	Example
Short video (reel)	Reach to new people	"3 mistakes in a sales follow-up"
Carousel	Teaching a method	"A 5-step lead qualification checklist"
Case study post	Trust and enquiries	"How one clinic doubled bookings in 6 weeks"

3. Paid social on Meta: how it works

1. Objective. Choose the goal the platform optimises for: awareness, traffic, leads or sales. The choice changes who sees the ad.
2. Audience. Location, age, interests and custom or lookalike audiences built from your customer list.
3. Budget and bidding. A daily or lifetime budget. The auction chooses which ad to show, based on bid, predicted response and relevance.
4. Creative. The image or video and the text. Creative is usually the biggest lever on results.

4. Google Ads (PPC): how it works

Pay-per-click (PPC) ads appear in Google Search when someone types a keyword you bid on. You pay only when someone clicks. The ad auction weighs your bid, the expected click-through rate, the quality of your landing page and the ad's relevance.

- Keywords and match types. Choose intent-rich phrases such as "PM course online" and use negative keywords to block waste, such as "free" if you do not offer a free course.
- Quality score. Google rates each keyword's relevance, expected clicks and landing-page experience. A higher score lowers your cost per click.
- Conversion tracking. Set up a conversion for each enquiry or purchase. Without it you are buying clicks, not customers.

START WITH A SMALL TEST

Begin with a small daily budget on 3 to 5 keywords and one landing page. Run for at least two weeks before judging. Stop any keyword with clicks and no conversions after a reasonable spend.

5. Measure what matters

- Cost per lead and cost per customer, not cost per click.
- Lead quality: how many became paying customers.
- Payback period: how long the marketing spend takes to earn back.

Checklist

- Business portfolio and access roles are set up.
- Conversion tracking is tested with a real enquiry.
- Each campaign has one goal, one audience and one landing page.
- Weekly review: pause, test or scale.

Reference: Meta Business Help Centre and Google Ads Help. Ad policies, bidding options and interface names change; check the current help pages before each campaign.